Assume the position

If, however, the support columns between K and L suddenly collapse (b) and allow the higher floors to free-fall together onto floor K, the force of the collision can exceed sW and cause K to collapse onto floor J, which collapses onto floor I, and so forth, until the ground is reached. This is called pancake collapse.

(a)   (b)